Farewell.

Of all the words of grief and woe where misery doth dwell
The saddest intonation lies within that one—farewell.
It serves to sever souls for aye, for who is there can tell
If hearts will ever meet again when once they say farewell?
It carries not a tone unkind; no wrath does it compel;
'Tis breathed from out the bosom's depth, that deep, that long farewell.
The aching heart is rent in twain and lies a shattered shell;
Then, with a longing, anguished cry, it says its last farewell.

—Sir Walter Scott.

AN INDENTURE.

Tom Barrett and I had been chums almost as long as we had been cousins, which I must confess was nearly twenty-four years. Tom was six months younger than I, and I ruled him with a rod of iron. But one day—the day when I became twenty-four years old—the worm turned. He told me that he loved me.

"Of course," I remarked coolly. "I'm your relation, I guess. You've got to."

And then he burst out with a lot of stuff about his not loving me as a relation, but as a wife.

"Tom Barrett," I said sternly, "do you think I would ever marry a man six months younger than myself? I have brought you up, and you know it. If I ever marry anybody it will be a mature, ready made man, who will guide and control and make me respect him! Don't you ever say another word to me about this as long as you live."

And I went up stairs and cried because my old Tom was gone.

One of my birthday presents had been a check for twenty-five dollars with which "to take a little trip," my blessed old uncle said, and I decided just to run down to Ann Arbor on that excuse and stay as long as I wanted to with my old friend, Orpha Reynolds. I might join some classes or do some reading and be contented there for a long time—until Tom had forgotten. And with a telegram to Orpha the next afternoon I was off.

Orpha was delighted to see me.

"I am so glad you came just now," she said as we sat together in the half dark after supper. "I shall need you to help me manage Ed."

"Ed who?" I inquired with some surprise, wondering if Orpha had been adopting an infant. My friend seemed a trifle embarrassed.

"Why, Ed Rice," she answered slowly. "I guess I haven't told you about him, have I?" No, I guessed she had not.

"He is a young boy in the law department," she went on with a conscious air, "who rooms next door. His eyes have given out temporarily, so that Dr. Carrow has forbidden all college work, and I have just been trying to amuse him and keep him out of mischief." All this was certainly very nice and philanthropic and quite like Orpha, but what on earth was she blushing about? I waited for her next words. She spoke very fast and would not look at me.

"I wish you would take him off my hands for awhile—you won't have much else to do. I hate to be with him much myself, he has been acting so for a week or two. I'm afraid he is beginning to think he cares for me—especially, you know. He doesn't of course—such a kid!" with scornful emphasis and an altogether unprecedented lapse into slang.

"How old?" I inquired concisely, with mental visions of a big headed, owl eyed infant prodigy bearing a law folio under each arm.

"Oh, twenty-two, or maybe twenty-three," she returned nonchalantly. "But that for a man is mere infancy. Now a woman"—

But this valuable philosophical disquisition was abruptly cut short. A subdued stamping and shaking was heard outside—it had been snowing all day—and we sat listening until some one banged the street door behind him and started up stairs three steps at a time, whistling under his breath. "That's Ed," said Orpha and rose to light the lamp, but she had only just scratched the match when there was a faint knock. The sitting room door was slowly pushed open, and a clear, boyish voice exclaimed:

"Just lighting up? You're late, aren't you?"

"Yes," said Orpha, turning up the wick. "Just wait till we have some light on the subject and I'll introduce you to an old friend of mine who came this afternoon from Grand Rapids. Miss Barrett, Mr. Rice," she concluded.

He bowed stiffly and murmured the conventional happiness; then, with a sudden, frank impulse, walked over and shook hands heartily, showing as he smiled two unmistakable dimples in a sensitive, extremely attractive face.

He had been there an hour, though it did not seem half that, when Orpha sent him home. She had to bohn out a French grammar lesson for an eight and a quarter the next morning, so I went to bed and left her swearing at Dupy in a pious sort of a way.

Really I did not mean to relieve Orpha of her young mission, but how could I help it. Under Orpha's orders he cheerfully pointed out to me the professional residences, the frathouses and all the other inevitables; conducted me over the museum, the library, the art gallery and the laboratories; dragged me around the boulevard to Cascade and Schoolly girls' glen, to Lovers' retreat and finally even to the sable fortune teller's on the Observatory road. In return I imparted to him all my little botanical lore and allowed him to join my daily constitutionals, so that every day, wet or dry—generally wet in Ann Arbor, you know — we sallied forth together in search of "specimens" and exercise.

I got acquainted with Ed very fast these days, and as I came to know him better I grew infinitely disgusted and enraged with Orpha for failing so entirely to appreciate him, but I dared not say a word for fear of ruining what little chance Ed might still have with her.

Before a month had passed Ann Arbor had laid her spell upon me. I determined to stay out the year anyhow, taking full college work, and it might be that I would even complete a regular course. So at the beginning of the second semester I entered as a "special." Ed was now allowed, conditionally, to attend lectures, and so on both sides our time for walking and scientific investigation was much curtailed. We still found time, however, for a short daily tramp, and as spring came on for frequent longer excursions. The beauty of May days was wholly irresistible, so that even our sober minded and church going Orpha was induced to spend one perfect Sunday morning with us in a quiet wood strewn thick with spring beauties and adder tongue. She confessed afterward that at first she thought it was wicked, but when we got there she knew it wasn't.

Well, with botanizing and tennis and examinations the last days of this blessed year slipped past.

The Saturday before commencement Ed and I went up the river for orchids. We found only a few yellow ones, but could not feel much disappointed. The sky and the river would be remade up for a much greater loss. We drifted back almost in silence, listening to the soft plash of the water against the boat, the dreary whispering of the trees on the bank and at intervals the faroff cry of a hawk.

Presently Ed interrupted it all.

"I want to give you something before you go," he announced suddenly. "May I?"

"Why, yes, if it isn't too valuable," I answered priggishly in a desperate attempt to be proper.

"I assure you it is absolutely worthless unless you care for it," and he dexterously tossed a long, folded paper into my lap. Another of the legal jokes he was always laboriously perpetrating! Yes—a deed this time, carefully filled out, except a short blank space near the top:

This indenture, made this 29th day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, between Edward Mills Rice, party of the first part, and ——, of the second part, witnesseth that the said party of the first part, for and in consideration of love and affection to him in hand paid by the said party of the second part, the receipt whereof is hereby confessed and acknowledged, does by these presents grant, bargain, sell, remise, release, alien and confirm unto the said party of the second part and to her heirs and assigns forever all that certain piece or parcel of humanity situate and being at present in the city of Ann Arbor, county of Washtenaw and state of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: An ordinary enough piece of goods, reasonably well educated and moderately well bred; twenty-three years old and quite alone in the world, with no eyes to speak of, and at least two years of grinding yet ahead, together with all and singular, the hereditaments and appurtenances belonging or in anywise appertaining, to have and to hold the said ——

I read no further.

"Ed, why don't you give this to Orpha?"

"Orpha!" he echoed. "She wouldn't have it; you know she wouldn't. And besides" added the audacious youth, "she has to paid me the 'consideration' mentioned therein."

"Well, goodness knows I didn't suppose I had, either, Ed. But—what shall I do with this?"

"You might just write your name in the space I left for it," he suggested.

I didn't quite dare to.

I leaned my chin upon my hand, looked into the water and thought. But Ed's face floated persistently between me and all prudential considerations. "He is a year younger than you. What about the mature 'ready made man' whom you assured Tom you should marry? What will Tom say? And how supremely ridiculous and inconsistent! Refuse Tom because he wasn't old enough and marry a man six months younger than he and twice as boyish looking! But, if I choose to be inconsistent, whose business is it anyhow." I would not reason. I would not "consider." I shot a swift smile up into Ed's anxious face and then with my fountain pen traced in round deliberate characters across the space he had left—Kate Marion Barrett.

I have the old deed yet. Since our marriage it has lain in state, the sole occupant of a convenient pigeonhole in my writing desk. Here I often run across it and smile as I wonder whether in dear old Ann Arbor, fragrant with the memory of countless student romances, the momentous question was ever before or since asked and answered in such unpoetic fashion. But Ed and I don't care. We have had our poetry since.—Kitty Carew in Detroit News.

Spiders' Webs for Telescopes.

The astronomers of the naval observatory have looked all over the world for spiders' webs. Such gossamer filaments spun by industrious arachnidæ are utilized in telescopes for cross lines extended at right angles with each other across the field of view, so as to divide the latter into mathematical spaces. Threads of cobweb are employed for the purpose because they are wonderfully strong for their exceeding fineness, and also for the reason that they are not affected by moisture or temperature, neither expanding nor contracting under any conditions.

Specimens were obtained from China because it was imagined that the large spiders of that country would perhaps produce a particularly excellent quality of web. However, it was found that the best web is spun by spiders of the United States, such as are plentiful in the neighborhood of Washington. Accordingly expeditions are made early in June each year to get from the fences and barns hereabouts the cocoons of the big "turtle back" spiders. Each cocoons is composed of a single silken filament wound round and round, though there are apt to be some breaks in it where Mistress Spider left off work for a time.

Attempts have been made to use the cocoons of spiders like those of silkworms, and exquisite fabrics have been manufactured from them. Unfortunately it was found impossible to make the industry a commercial success, owing to the combative inclination of these creatures. When kept together they will always gobble each other up in a short time, the final result being a single very large and fat spider and one cocoon.—Washington Cor. Boston Transcript.

SUNSET.

Hoi sound the alarm—the western sky's on fire;
The flames dance wildly o'er each fleecy spire,
Staining cloud castles with their crimson glow,
Reflecting glory on the earth below.

But see! from out the east, faint flushed with red,
The ghosts of darkness come with stealthy tread;
The flames' fierce progress they full soon arrest
And quench the mighty conflagration in the west.

—Frederick C. Barber in New York Press.

THE FRONTIERSMAN.

Captain (afterward colonel) William Crawford—the same man who was barbarously tortured to death by the Indians in 1782 near the site of the present village of Upper Sandusky in the state of Ohio—on a certain occasion was marching a company from the frontier of his own state toward the western wilderness.

Crawford's men were principally hunters and farmers from what were then the border settlements of Virginia, belonging to that hardy and enterprising class from whose ranks at a later day were furnished those bands of sturdy pioneers whose dauntless deeds have filled with thrilling interest the annals of the "Dark and Bloody Ground."

When on the verge of the settlements, in consequence of some accident, Crawford found himself without adequate means of transportation for his baggage and supplies. At this juncture his eye fell on a wagoner who had stopped to feed and rest his horses in the vicinity of the camp. In such an emergency the captain felt no hesitation in pressing the services of the team and its driver, and lost no time in communicating his intention to the latter.

The driver, who was an evident disbeliever in the doctrine of "military necessity," became highly incensed, declaiming eloquently on the inviolability of private property, in relation to which he would probably have concluded by quoting the constitution of the United States—had it been then in existence. But arguments were vain. He was alone in the midst of a military band, ready and abundantly willing to enforce their commander's orders.

The wagoner was a burly, double fisted, square built fellow, whose face bore the marks of many a hard fought battle. In his own locality his name was, fistically speaking, famous. He had on more than one occasion gouged out his eye and bit off his nose—I don't mean his own—and was looked upon in consequence with much the same sort of respect which dueling communities, if any such there be at present, are accustomed to pay to him who has winged, much more to him who has killed his man.

The wagoner at length became quiet, directing a sullen look at the soldiers, as if making an internal comparison between his own strength and that of the forces opposed to him. Apparently deriving but little encouragement from the scrutiny, he turned once more to the captain and observed that every man ought to have a fair chance; that the odds against him deprived him of the power of protecting his rights; that he would, however, make a proposition which the captain, in his opinion, was in honor bound to respect.

"I will fight you," said he, "or any many in your company. If I am whipped I will go with you cheerfully; if I conquer you shall let me off."

The wagoner proved himself a skillful diplomatist. He either knew Crawford's character or had read it during the interview. The captain was a thorough backwoodsman—stout, active and chivalrous—and not undistinguished in the field of pugilistic prowess. A refusal of the challenge might be construed into a lack of personal courage, than which nothing could more certainly deprive him of the respect and confidence of his men. Besides it is not unlikely that his own disposition and code of ethics may have suggested that there was nothing unreasonable in the wagoner's claim of "a fair chance." He at once acceded to the proposition, and both parties began to prepare for the encounter.

At this instant a tall young man who had recently joined the company and was a stranger to most of them, and who had been leaning carelessly against a tree eying the scene with apparent indifference, stepped forward and drew Crawford aside.

"Captain," said he, "you must let me fight that man; he will whip you."

Crawford was unwilling to exhibit the appearance of "backing out," but the youth contended that to have the captain beaten, which would be the inevitable result of his persistence, would tarnish the honor of the company, and, moreover, expressed the opinion that he was the only man who could whip the wagoner. The confidence of the youth had something in it calculated to inspire the confidence of others and enabled him to carry his point. Crawford having done all that policy required in accepting the challenge prudently suffered himself to be persuaded by his men to let the stranger take his place.

There was a great disparity in the appearance of the two men. The wagoner was in the full vigor of maturity. His herculean frame, hardened by exposure and exercise, to say nothing of his great experience in such contests, seemed to promise every advantage. The form of his antagonist beneath the folds of his hunting shirt appeared slender and loosely put together, as well as lacking in the capaciousness and power of ripened manhood, but when divested of the garment that concealed his proportions a more perfect specimen of physical development was never beheld. The swelling muscles were unencumbered by an ounce of superfluous flesh. The glossy skin of his expanding chest in its polished smoothness and fineness of texture the surest proof, was found in man or beast, of lineage aristocracy. Such a skin as plainly marks the human thoroughbred as the silken coat of the racehorse, through which can be traced the most delicate veins and the outlines of every muscle, distinguishes its lordly owner from his plebeian brother, doomed to drag the plow and bear the heat and burden of the day.

The two combatants for a moment glared at each other with a fierce earnestness which betokened a fixed resolution on the part of each "never to submit or yield." The wagoner threw himself into an attitude which evinced a complete mastery of the most manly of arts and brutal of "sciences." The position and bearing of the young man may have been indicative of a want of that complete educational training so perceptible in his adversary, but the flash of his eye denoted genius, and genius, you know, can do everything—except what is useful.

The wagoner speedily assumed the offensive, aiming a blow which must have felled an ox. The youth, who never for a moment lost his antagonist's eye, sprang dexterously aside, and ere the other could recover his guard or regain his balance, which he had partially lost in missing his aim, with the bound of a tiger the young soldier threw himself forward, dealing his huge enemy a blow between the eyes, to which was added the momentum of his whole body. Such a sound as is heard when a butcher knocks down a bullock accompanied the blow—and not less prostrate and apparently lifeless lay the bully.

Although the etiquette of "the ring," as then expounded, would have permitted the victor to follow up his advantage till his opponent cried "enough," in cases in which the party had evidently received enough, but was unable to say so, as in the case of a prisoner "standing mute by the act of God," it was usual for the plea to be entered for him. Such was the course pursued in the present instance; but the plea, which the young stranger seemed imperfectly to hear, required to be enforced by the active interference of the bystanders.

The condition of the vanquished man began to excite the most lively apprehensions. Some insisted that his skull was broken, for they had heard it crack, while others took a more hopeful and as the event proved correct view of the symptoms. After a persevering use of the approved remedies, including the dashing of gourdful after gourdful of cold water in his face, the wagoner slowly opened his eyes and began to rub them. He was soon able to sit up, and in a few minutes more had regained his legs. He had had "a fair chance" and was evidently satisfied. Without a word he proceeded to hitch up his team, after which he turned to the captain and reported himself "ready."

The name of the youth was Daniel Morgan, whose subsequent exploits in the American revolution, in which he rose to the rank of brigadier general, have been read by every schoolboy in America. His achievements during the two terms he served in congress are not so widely known.—Exchange.

Feeding the Pet Dog.

Pet dogs should never have but one full meal a day, and that about 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening. A little milk or broth should be given in the morning, but nothing else. They should have a dish of mashed greens, well boiled tripe, lightly boiled liver once or twice a week; not a full meal, but mixed with their food.

Remember that their food must be nourishing; for example, tough ends of steak and bone pieces boiled until you can remove the bones, then salted and thickened with potatoes or stale bread. Terriers must have meat of some kind often. Never give any dog chicken bones, there is nothing much more dangerous. About once a month get a joint of the neck of beef and let the dog have the bones after cooking.

Puppies should be fed four or five times a day on boiled milk. When two months old bread may be added, or a little very finely mashed potatoes; never meat until six months old, and then very sparingly until they are a year old. Feeding meat to young dogs causes distemper. They may have small, safe bones after three months. If they get diarrhea, give a little cheese.—Mrs. Theodore Wright in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Toughest.

The plain boarder looked up from his plate furtively. The landlady was gazing directly at him. He trembled slightly, for he was about to cross the Rubicon, and even Cæsar had a shiver when he made that break, successful as it afterward proved to be.

"What is it?" she inquired.

He hesitated a moment.

"The beefsteak," he replied.

"What's the matter with the beefsteak? I'm sure I buy the best in the market."

"It's tough, madam."

"You only think so," she said warmly.

"Possibly I do, madam," and his nerves came to a tension, "but I know there is only one thing in the wide, wide world tougher than it is, and that is the conscience of the landlady who could place it before a boarder without at the same time providing him with an ax or at least a saw."

Today that man is living at a cheap restaurant.—Detroit Free Press.

The Government Time Service.

The Western Union company earns about $1,000,000 annually from its electric clock service, charging fifteen dollars a year for setting each clock at noon daily. The time sold thus profitably it gets from the government for nothing, but anybody can have the same privilege free of charge by putting an instrument and a wire into the observatory. Captain McNair, the naval officer in charge, is anxious to furnish time ball service to private individuals and concerns in every seaport city, only demanding as a condition that he shall have the return wire furnished him in order that he may publish corrections in the newspapers. Such time balls would enable mariners to correct their chronometers. It was chiefly for this purpose, in fact, that the time service was originally established.—Washington Cor. Boston Transcript.

THE fourth annual report of the State Board of Horticulture has just been issued. This year it takes 450 pages to concisely state all the advances that have been made in the State in the way of fruit and plant cultivation. According to the report, vast acres of land have been laid out in orchards, and the wealth of the State has been correspondingly increased. The report gives minute knowledge of the State from a fruitgrower's stand point, and gives complete information not only how to grow fruit, but where to grow it and how to place it before the consumers. Any one desiring to obtain a copy can do so on application to the State Board of Horticulture, 220 Sutter street, San Francisco, remitting twelve cents for postage. In order to avoid delays it is requested that all applications be briefly worded and only relate to this volume.

A STRONG effort is to be made at the present session of the legislature to secure submission of a constitutional amendment, under which growing trees may be exempted from taxation up to a certain age. The argument is advanced that growing grain is not subject to taxation, and that serious discrimination is thus in effect made against fruitgrowers. The proposition has been extensively discussed by the interior press, and the sentiment in the fruit districts is clearly in its favor.

IT is announced that Arthur E. Shattuck, a Petaluma boy, now a resident of San Francisco, and who has numerous relatives in Sonoma, has struck a fortune in a newly invented can such as is used for putting up such commodities as coffee, spices, etc. The can is made of paper with only tin for bottom and top, thus making a great saving in the cost of such cans.

THE settlement of the Oregon contest makes it possible to give an accurate table of the vote for President as it should be cast by the Electoral College, and which will show: Total number of votes, 444; necessary to choice, 223; Cleveland's majority, 108. The total vote of the respective candidates is as follows: Cleveland, 276, Harrison 144 Weaver 24.

THE old cure for the drink habit, which consists of chewing raisins every time a drink is desired, has been tried in a number of cases with great success and is now being freely recommended in various quarters. Another remedy, which is indorsed quite often by the medical fraternity consists of eating apples in great quantities, both during meals and whenever thirst is felt.

THE new road law has gone into effect. It is now provided that "the Boards of Supervisors of the several counties shall divide their respective counties into suitable road districts, and may change the boundaries thereof, and each Supervisor shall be ex-officio road commissioner of the several road districts in his supervisor district, and shall see that all contracts made with and all orders of the Board of Supervisors pertaining to the roads and bridges in his district are properly executed, etc."

JUDGE ANGELLOTTI of San Rafael reports no progress in the sale of the Donahue railway. The officers of the company have given out that important bids are expected within the next two weeks.

STEPHEN M. WHITE has now the undivided support of his party in his Senatorial aspirations and without a doubt will be selected United States Senator by the Legislature on the first ballot.

The promptness with which Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops a hacking cough and induces refreshing sleep is something marvelous. It never fails to give instant relief, even in the worst cases of throat and lung trouble, and is the best remedy for whooping cough.

The County Officers.

Tuesday was inauguration day at the Sonoma county capital. There was no vast crowd lingering at the corridors of the capital building to catch a glimpse of the new officers as they swept down the halls to be sworn in. There was no rush to ticket brokers for seats at elevated windows to watch the inaugural pageant as it swept along and no blare of trumpets and glare of torchlights were there to herald to the world that a change of public servants was about to take place.

In the District Attorney's office the new official, Emmet Seawell, was in the public prosecutor's chair. The retiring official, Albert G. Burnett, moved out Monday and is now in his new office in the Doyle & Overton block.

County Treasurer Peter N. Stofen succeeds himself and was at the old stand at the usual time, doing business in the same genial way that characterizes his movements in the responsible position as chief of the county exchequer.

Preston Davis, Surveyor-elect, moved into his office early. The retiring surveyor, L. E. Ricksecker, has moved into the office at the Sonoma county Abstract Bureau.

Gilbert P. Hall succeeds himself as Auditor and Recorder and his deputy, Wm. H. Pool, has his old place.

Samuel I. Allen, the new Sheriff, took charge of his responsible office in his business sort of way. John F. Mulgrew, the retiring Sheriff, took pleasure in introducing his successor to all who called. George F. Allen, the new under sheriff, was soon busy at the books. The new deputies, Frank J. Murphy, Frank P. Brophy and Jailor John Henry Weise were there to attend to business.

In the clerk's office the new Clerk, William F. Wines, was there to exchange places with L. W. Juilliard, the retiring clerk, who becomes his deputy and takes charge of department No. 1. Todd succeeds himself as deputy for department No. 2, while John Smith succeeds Will Coulter, who will shortly resume the joys of farming.—Republican.

"Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer" by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This wonderful medicine so invigorates the system and enriches the blood that cold weather becomes positively enjoyable. Artic explorers would do well to make a note of this.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light house.

Mr and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich. and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a dreadful Cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store.

In Its Worst Form

After Physicians Failed, Hood's Sarsaparilla Perfectly Cured.

Great mental agony is endured by parents who see their children suffering from diseases caused by impure blood, and for which there seems no cure. This is turned to joy when Hood's Sarsaparilla is resorted to, for it expels the foul humors from the blood, and restores the diseased skin to fresh, healthy brightness. Read the following from grateful parents:

"To C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"We think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most valuable medicine on the market for blood and skin diseases. Our two children suffered terribly with the for two years. We had three physicians in that time, but neither of them succeeded in curing them or even in giving them a little relief. At last we tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a month both children were perfectly cured. We recommend as a standard family medicine, and would not be without it." MR. and MRS. M. M. SOLLER, 1412 2nd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

HOOD'S PILLS cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

An Enemy Baffled.

There is an enemy with whom thousands are familiar all their lives, because they are born with a tendency to biliousness, with this enemy they are constantly battling with ineffectual weapons. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will baffle it. Mere purgatives will not reform a disordered condition of the liver indicated, not by constipation alone, but also by sick headache, yellowness of the skin and eye balls, nausea, furred tongue and uneasiness, more particularly upon pressure on the right side, upon and below the short ribs. Avoid drastic purgatives which gripe and weaken the intestines, and substitute this world-famous anti-bilious cordial, which likewise removes malarial, stomachic and kidney complaints rheumatism and nervousness. As a laxative of the bowles, painless but effectual, it impoves appetite, sleep and the ability to digest, and possesses the adeitional advantage of a standard tonic.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending up on a healthy condition of the vital organs. If the Liver be inactive, you have a Bilious Look, if your stomach be disordered you have a Dyspeptic Look and if your Kidneys be affected you have a Pinched Look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and Tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, Blotches, Boils and gives a good complexion sold at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store. 50c per bottle.

Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equaled by other preparations. AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. "German Syrup"

Asthma. "I have been a great sufferer from Asthma and severe Colds every Winter, and last Fall my friends as well as myself thought because of my feeble condition, and great distress from constant coughing, and inability to raise any of the accumulated matter from my lungs, that my time was close at hand. When nearly worn out for want of sleep and rest, a friend recommended me to try thy valuable medicine, Boschee's German Syrup. I am confident it saved my life. Almost the first dose gave me great relief and a gentle refreshing sleep, such as I had not had for weeks. My cough began immediately to loosen and pass away, and I found myself rapidly gaining in health and weight. I am pleased to inform thee—unsolicited—that I am in excellent health and do certainly attribute it to thy Boschee's German Syrup. C. B. STICKNEY, Picton, Ontario."

The Firemans' Ball at Union Hall on New Years' eve was well attended and a financial success. Few people from Sonoma attended, those present being for the most part strangers and visitors in the valley.

Col. Geo. F. Hooper of Sobre-Vista has our thanks for a sample bottle of his wild cherry brandy, vintage 1881. We were about to "swear off" on New Years Day, but upon tasting this twelve-year-old brandy, which is a "nectar fit for the gods" we at once decided to postpone action in the matter until a later date when the proposition will again be considered.

Mrs. Robt. C. Johnson of Buena Vista Park will exhibit a painting by Karl Kahler at the Mechanics' Fair, which opens in San Francisco next Tuesday. The painting represents Mrs. Johnson's celebrated Sonoma Valley angora cat family. At the close of the above exposition the painting will be put on exhibition at the World's Fair.

The progressive merchant to-day owes his success to advertising; without it one might as well take down his sign and invite the sheriff to walk in and close up his business. The wisest business men and the most successful ones are those who keep their names prominently before the public when trade is good as well as when it is dull. Constant and continuous advertising, got up in attractive style, is like the constant dripping of water upon the flinty rock; slowly but surely an impression is made.

SONOMA MEADOW LANDS.

They Will Produce a Remarkable Yield of Grain this Season.

On Saturday last, accompained by foreman Burns, we rode over the Sonoma meadow lands on the Senator Jones ranch and made a careful inspection of the two thousand acres which were seeded to grain last Fall.

The young grain is making a remarkable growth and almost the entire 2,000 acres is one vast carpet of green. Here and there are spots in low places, which to the casual observer would appear to have missed, but upon close inspection it was found that even in those places the grain had commenced to come up.

The plowing and seeding this season was done under the supervision of foreman Burns, who has had many years experience in farming the meadow lands bordering Sonoma creek south of town.

It is no exaggeration to state that there is no grain field in California to-day that gives better promise of an enormous yield than these two thousand acres.

W. B. Pless, the managing Director of the Pless Dredging and Reclamation Company, who has full charge of the reclamation enterprise, is more than pleased with the outlook, as he has maintained right along that if the Sonoma meadow lands were properly reclaimed and cultivated that they could be made to produce enormous crops and he will be able to prove his proposition to the most skeptical this season.

STEAMER TIBURON BURNED.

Loss About $30,000, Which is Covered by Insurance.

The handsome steamer Tiburon, belonging to the Donahue Railway Company, took fire at the ferry slip, San Francisco, last Sunday afternoon and was almost totally destroyed.

The boat, shortly after entering the slip from her return 12:45 trip across the Bay, was discovered by one of the employees to be on fire. He gave the alarm, but the flames spread so quickly that the Tiburon was doomed before the fire boats or the engines arrived on the scene.

The vessel was valued at about $100,000, and was insured for $40,000 in the Home Insurance Company of New York.

The fire is supposed to have started in the kitchen of the restaurant from a greasy rag which was thrown back of the stove.

The Tiburon will be docked as soon as possible and rebuilt.

It is roughly estimated that the loss will amount to $20,000 or $30,000, which is fully covered by the insurance.

Jas. Hayden, the popular proprietor of the steamer's bar, lost $1000 on his stock of liquors and cigars. It was a dead loss as he carried no insurance.

The Chinese Assault Case.

Ah Wing, charged with assaulting Ah Chung on the Mecartney place, one day last week, had his examination before Judge Cheney Thursday morning. District Attorney Seawell and J. P. Rodgers of Petaluma represented the prosecution, while R. M. Swain of Santa Rosa endeavored to show that the assailant was a good chinaman. The Judge, after listening to the testimony of five witnesses for the prosecution and one for the defense, held the accused to answer before the Superior Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, with bail set at $500.

Remains Identified.

The dead body of the man observed by passengers on the Southern Pacific train, on Monday of last week, tied to a rowboat near the drawbridge several miles east of this place, was subsequently taken to Napa and an inquest held on the remains. The unfortunate man was Andy B. Gardner of Napa, who lost his life by falling from a footbridge into Napa river the early part of last month.

Painful Accident.

Henry Bates, the young and pleasant clerk in Duhring's store, met with a painful accident last Saturday evening, which has prevented him from attending to his duties at the store the past week. While walking in the yard in the rear of the store he stepped on a large-sized nail, which penetrated the left foot and caused that member to become much swollen and inflamed.

THE SUPERVISORS.

New Members Take Their Seats—"The Brains" of the Board Retires.

The Board of Supervisors met last Tuesday and the the new members, Messrs. P. H. Thompson, Jacob Joost and John W. Hall, took their seats. Supervisors Sales and Mead, the hold-overs, were also present, "the brains" of the old Board and his two henchmen having in the meantime retired, much to the relief of Sonoma township taxpayers. In the afternoon the new Board met and elected a chairman.

Mr. Mead placed in nomination John Sales, and he in turn nominated Chairman Mead. The vote stood 4 to 1 for Mead, and he was declared elected.

The following roadmasters' bills were allowed by the board: J. B. Burgess, $240.95; H. A. Russell, $260.80; A. J. Hembree, $279.50; Joseph Gossage, $672.75; Charles Fairclo, $29; John Johnson, $101.25; T. J. Gould, $69.75; James Owens, $239.40: Ben Pengle, $153.29; O. Elmore, $321.09; N. H. Cox, $141.14; W. F. Harris, $177.95; J. B. Cooley, $66.75; Victor Durand, $65. On motion of Mr. Hall, William P. Barnes was changed from Mark West to Fulton school district.

On motion of Supervisor Joost the Board adjourned to meet Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY, January 4th.

The Board met at 9 o'clock A. M., all members present, Chairman Mead presiding.

The bill of J. E. Kearney, road overseer, for $680.44 was allowed.

The following motion was made by Supervisor Sales:

It appearing that the funds of the county will not at present permit of the construction of a bridge across Russian river at Healdsburg, a bridge across Maacama creek at Bidwell's, and a bridge across Warm Springs creek at Skaggs Springs, and a laundry at the County Farm, and it appearing that no surveys of the sites for the proposed bridges have yet been made by the Board, and that bridges could not be erected until later in the season, and in passing the orders to advertise for bids for the above, hasty action was taken thereon.

I now, therefore, move that the orders of the Board dated December 9th, 1892, instructing the Clerk to advertise for bids for said bridges, and the order of the Board dated November 18, 1892, instructing the Clerk to advertise for bids for said laundry be, and each and all of said orders are hereby rescinded in all matters and respects, and the Clerk be and is hereby instructed to cease to adveretise for the above matters. So ordered.

On motion of Mr. Sales the Board adjourned to meet Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

THE WEATHER.

Cold and Foggy—Rainfall to Date.

The weather the past week has been characterized by cold and foggy mornings and pleasant sunny afternoons. Farmers are busy plowing and pruning and the farming and dairying outlook in Sonoma Valley is very promising.

The late storm gave the ground a thorough soaking and started the grass growing on every side.

The rainfall for the season to date, as recorded by Robt. Hall, is as follows.

Month	Inches
October	1.37
November	6.47
December	7.97
Total	15.80

The rainfall for the corresponding period last year was 9.56 inches.

The Italian Cutting Scrape Case.

P. Ubaldi, one of the three men charged with running amuck in the Garibaldi House on Christmas night was examined before Judge Cheney last Thursday, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. The prisoner was represented by attorney J. P. Rodgers of Petaluma and District Attorney Seawell looked after the interests of the prosecution. After hearing a portion of the testimony Judge Cheney postponed further hearing of the case until next Thursday.

The case of Galli, who was also a participant in the affray, and who was seriously cut in the lower part of the abdomen, will be called as soon as Ubaldi's is disposed of.

Felicci Clerito, who is supposed to have done most of the cutting, and who is now in jail in Santa Rosa where he was committed by Judge Cheney last week in default of $500 bail to answer a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, will be brought before the Judge today to answer another charge sworn to by Galli, who charges Clerito with cutting him also. Judge Breitenbach will represent the accused and District Attorney Seawell the people.

Thornton & Merzbach, attorneys at-law, have began suit against I. G. Wickersham, the banker of Petaluma; Lippitt & Lippitt, attorneys of that town, and Henley & McSherry to recover for their professional services. The plaintiffs allege that they were engaged to prosecute suits against the San Luis Obispo Bank. They recovered $70,000, but have received nothing for their services. They say that Wickersham agreed to pay 5 per cent of the amount recovered, as well as a reasonable compensation for the services of the attorneys.—Examiner.

Mart Tarwater of Santa Rosa had an odd sort of experience at his home a few days ago. His wife set two large size buckets of milk on the stove to take off the chill, and busied herself about other things until her attention was arrested by a loud explosion, and the milk flew up to the ceiling like a little geyser. On investigation it was found the bucket had an outer and inner bottom, between the two there wasi quite a cavity. It had filled up with water and was nearly air-tight. Set on a hot stove it soon made steam enough to blow out the milk product of the Tarwater ranch for that day.—Democrat.

Saturday morning at one o'clock Fenwick Fisher, aged 67 years and 3 months, died at the county hospital. Deceased was one of the old timers of Santa Rosa. He was assistant editor of the Democrat for a while, his brother being a founder of that paper. Afterward he worked at the case and did editorial duty at Marysville and Sacramento. He was a Mexican war veteran. Old citizens will remember him as a man of good parts.—Republican.

William Dougherty of Fulton, says the Santa Rosa "Republican," who last March was sentenced to the county jail for one year on account of a fight he got into with a man there, was about the happiest man in town Friday. What made him so happy was the receipt of a large envelope from Governor Markham containing a pardon for him. Ever since Dougherty was committed he has been in every way an exemplary prisoner and all who know him were pleased when they heard of his pardon. For the past few months he has been a trusty and sheriff and jailer can testify to his good behavior. He left in the afternoon for his home in Fulton, as light-hearted and happy as any man in the county.

The young man, Sharp, writes a correspondent of the Santa Rosa "Democrat," who suicided on his father's ranch last Monday morning left the house and walked about one hundred yards to an eminence in the direction of the family burying ground, which was in plain view and but little more than one hundred yards away. We can see him now in our mind's eye as he stood there. He first glanced back to the house where he was born and raised and where he had just left a loving mother and father, brothers and sister. He then looked in the direction of the graveyard, where he knew he would soon be laid. Then placing his 44 Winchester rifle under his chin he pulled the trigger and the deed was done.

An Enterprising Landlord.

C. F. Rodin, proprietor of the Sonoma House, has made some excellent changes in his hotel the past few weeks. He has had the large bar room partitioned off into three apartments, which will be used for a card room, reading room and bar room respectively. Other changes for the comfort of guests have also been made and others are to follow. It is Mr. Rodin's intention to make the Sonoma House the hotel of the town, all he wants is a little encouragement and a share of the public patronage.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

PREPARED FOR AN ACCIDENT.

Passengers on a Ferryboat Put on Life Preservers as a Precaution.

Any one could see that they were "pa, ma and son," and that this was their first ferryboat trip. They walked just ahead of me going up the steps. The first thing they did was to go all over the boat asking questions of everybody. I kept them in sight. When at last they took seats on the rear guard I sat near them. By that time we were half way across the bay.

"Lands! What 'er stream!" exclaimed ma, looking at the stretch of water between us and Oakland.

"Wouldn't be much fun if we upset," remarked the son.

"Gracious! I never thought uv that," exclaimed ma in a startled voice.

"Ever hev accidents?" asked pa, looking toward me.

"Not often," I said, "and if there should be they are always there." I pointed to the life preservers that were hanging above us.

They all three looked.

"What are they?" asked ma curiously.

I explained. The trio arose to get a nearer view. Pa took one of the life preservers down.

"Well, now," exclaimed ma, "how on airth would yer get into it?"

Pa read the printed directions pasted on the outside very slowly.

"Let's jist try her on," suggested ma eagerly. "Here, son, you turn around here."

There was a feeble remonstrance on the son's part, to which not the slightest attention was paid. In a few moments he was arrayed in a life preserver, to his parents' intense satisfaction.

"Jist git down another one, pa," said ma, "I'll see if I can put it on."

After a good many struggles she succeeded in doing so. "Now, pa," she said complacently, "you try one."

Nothing loath pa obeyed, and soon he stood proudly beside her.

"'Spose we jist keep 'em on till we lan," suggested ma.

This they agreed to do.

"No knowin what'll happen," pa said significantly.

And there they sat until the boat landed, totally oblivious to everything but their own satisfaction—so glad that they were prepared for anything that might happen.

As I left the ferry they were helping each other take off their life preservers.—New Orleans Picayune.

Owns the Battlefield Now.

Sergeant George Munroe, of the police department, while riding on a street car engaged in conversation upon politics with a stranger, in the course of which the sergeant announced himself as a Harrison man.

"And why?" asked the stranger.

"Because I fought under Harrison," was the reply.

"Were you in the Atlanta campaign, and do you remember the battle of Ezra Church?" asked the stranger with considerable earnestness.

"I was and I do; the engagement of my regiment—the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio Volunteer infantry—at that place is marked on the regimental flag as 'Battle of Utoy Creek.' They are one and the same."

"Well, I own that battlefield now. My name is Stone—Dr. Stone—and I am glad to have met a man who had bullets fired at him on the site of my residence, and by the way," said the doctor, "I have in my pocket some of the minie balls which I recently unearthed near my house. Perhaps you would like one as a souvenir. Here it is."

The sergeant took the proffered bullet, and if it were gold he would not value it more.—Boston Transcript.

Action of Cheese on Nickel.

A singular fact with regard to an unsuspected property of cheese, which has been accidentally discovered, is interesting to chemists aside from its hygienic bearings. It appears that nickel plated ware, which is deservedly in favor with housekeepers on account of its durability, its handsome appearance and the ease with which it is cleaned, is attacked more energetically by cheese than even by vinegar or lactic acid.

All kinds of cheese are found to produce this effect in the same degree; even when dry any of them will eat into a nickel plated salver in less than twelve hours. Since ordinary cheese shows a decidedly neutral reaction when treated with litmus paper, it was supposed that the trifling amount of baldrianic acid which it contains would be insufficient to account for the phenomenon. This assumption, however, turns out to be erroneous, for, as the result of direct experiment, it is found that nickel is speedily corroded by baldrianic acid.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Pouring Out a Libation.

When opening a bottle of wine the waiter first pours a little into your host's glass. Why? Is it to cleanse the bottle of anything which passes off with the pouring of the first glass? No. Away back in feudal times it was a custom too. In those times it told a man's guests that if his flagon of wine was poisoned the contents of his own beaker would prove it. So if a guest saw his host drink without ill results it seemed safe to conclude that the wine was all right and the repast might proceed.—Notes and Queries.

Shopping for Amusement.

The French critic, musician and government official, Romieu, was fond of joking. One of his diversions—amusing, but not to be commended—was to go into some shop where he was not known and perplex the clerks by his questions and remarks. One day he went into a glove store and told the clerk that he wished to make a purchase, but must apologize for his poor French. If she would listen carefully he hoped to make himself intelligible. He had always found the clerks in Paris so intelligent and amiable, he said, that one need not be discouraged even if he did not speak the language very well. He would like a pair of gloves—kid gloves. Did she understand?

All this was said in perfect French, with irreproachable accent and idioms.

"Certainly, sir," murmured the astonished clerk.

"Ah, then I will persevere; kid gloves, pearl gray—do you understand—pearl gray?"

"Yes, sir, you speak French with perfect"——

"A thousand thanks. This is another proof of the inexhaustible amiability and patience which I have noticed in the shops of Paris. With two buttons—you comprehend?"

"Yes."

"The Parisians are so quick to catch one's meaning! And will you kindly stretch them, and put in some glove powder? What is the price? I wish my command of French permitted me to express my thanks for the promptness and courtesy with which I have been served."

He paid for his gloves and departed without a smile.—Youth's Companion.

An Ox Yoke Punishment.

There is an old farmer out in Jersey who has as great a detestation of flirting as was ever cherished by the mikado himself. It was a great shock to him one evening at church when he caught his fourteen-year-old daughter exchanging glances and smiles with a neighbor's son a couple of years older. The old gentleman mused over the problem all the way home, and finally hit upon an expedient which he only awaited the opportunity to put into practice.

This was not long in coming. As he turned a corner of the road the next day he caught a glimpse of the young couple on the road ahead of him, walking along, hand in hand, and even as he paused, speechless, he saw them exchange a kiss. That settled it.

With a few strides he had overtaken the culprits and was marching them off to his barn, which stood in a prominent position close by the high road. A shout brought out the hired man, and in a twinkling the old granger had slipped an ox bow over his victims' heads. Then he seated them on the doorstep and kept them there for one mortal hour, calling the attention of all passers by to "my two calves I'm a breakin in."

At the end of the time he released the prisoners, who made all haste to put as much distance between each other as possible.

And now they don't even speak when they pass by.—New York Recorder.

Her Husband in Luck for Once.

"I was once kidnaped by a pretty woman," was the way George W. Louthan, of the Smoky City, began a story at the Lindell. "I was standing in front of a popular resort in Denver, chatting with some boon companions, when the lady marched up to me and said, severely, 'George, I have been looking for you,' and before I could make reply she took my arm and marched me off to a carriage. Mechanically I got in, and she drove off with me, berating me soundly meanwhile. I said nothing, but kept wondering who she could be. She appeared to have a roster of my faults, for she enumerated them all. Presently she stopped before a rather pretentious dwelling, and I thought it time to ask for an explanation. She turned upon me quite indignantly, stopped, looked hard at me, then stammered forth an apology. She had mistaken me for her husband. I accepted her apology on condition that the lecture she had given me should not be warmed over for the man who looked like me. She promised, and I escaped."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

King Otto, Bavaria's crazy sovereign, is physically healthy, but is threatened with voluntary starvation in consequence of his frequent refusals to eat for two or three days. Occasionally he becomes violent, is imprisoned in a padded cell, and exhausts himself by shouting and trying to tear down the iron bars of the window. Sometimes he is the victim of an uncontrollable fear of carpets, and refuses to step on one lest he might plunge into the chasm which he imagines yawns before him.

My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm, convulsion, and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would act violently and set sometimes, bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed, otherwise her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all these torments, which myself and wife gladly testify it truly had the desired effect D. S. M'GILLIS.

DO YOU WANT TO ADOPT A BABY?

Maybe you think this is a new business, sending out babies on application; it has been done before, however, but never have those furnished been so near the original sample as this one. Everyone will exclaim, "Well! that's the sweetest baby I ever saw!" This little black-and-white engraving can give you but a faint idea of the exquisite original, which we propose to send to you, transportation paid. The little darling rests against a pillow, and is in the act of drawing off its pink sock, the mate of which has been pulled off and flung aside with a triumphant coo. The flesh tints are perfect, and the eyes follow you, no matter where you stand. The exquisite reproductions of this greatest painting of Ida Waugh (the most celebrated of modern painters of baby life) are to be given to those who subscribe to Demorest's Family Magazine for 1893. The reproductions cannot be told from the original, which cost $500, and are the same size (17x22 inches). The baby is life size, and absolutely lifelike. We have also in preparation, to present to our subscribers during 1893, other great pictures by such artists as Percy Moran, Maud Humphrey, Louis Deschamps, and others of world-wide renown. Take only two examples of what we did during the past year, "A Yard of Pansies," and "A White House Orchid" by the wife of President Harrison, and you will see what our promises mean.

"I'M A DAISY."

Those who subscribe for Demorest's Family Magazine for 1893 will possess a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides a Magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep everyone posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion Magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and we give you, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2, and you will really get over $25 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send 10 cents for a specimen copy.

NAGLE IN COURT.

In the Justice's Court of Santa Rosa Township, Sonoma County, California.

J. W. RAGSDALE, Plaintiff, vs.
F. G. NAGLE, Defendant.

The plaintiff for cause of action against the defendant, alleges: That on the 16th day of November, 1888, said defendant, F. G. Nagle, received from G. W. Call the sum of one hundred (100) dollars, the property of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau; that of said money said defendant, Nagle, returned to said Bureau the sum of $20 only, and retained, and ever since has retained, the balance of said $100, to-wit, $80, for his own use, and that no part of said $80 has ever been paid; that said Bureau assigned said claim to plaintiff.

For a further and separate cause of action plaintiff alleges: That defendant is indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $80 for money had and received from G. W. Call, November 16th, 1888, for the use and benefit of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau, which claim has been assigned to the plaintiff, and that no part of the same has ever been paid.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays for a judgment against defendant for the sum of $80 and costs.

RUTLEDGE & PRESSLEY,
Attorneys for Plaintiff.

Dec. 9, 1891, complaint filed, summons issued and served. Dec. 15 default and judgment entered against defendant for $80 and costs. Dec. 16th, Nagle pays judgment.
